WOMAN ROBBED HER OWN TRUNK

But She Will Have to Do
Seven Months at Asch
Hotel.

Takina, a daughter of Dai Nippon evidently believes that fate falls along pretty hard lines when a Japanese woman can not indulge in that exhilarating pastime of robbing her own trunk, without the interference from officers of the law.

Nevertheless, the breaking open of a strong box which under oath, the woman declared a part ownership, will cause her to while away seven long and dreary months as an unwilling guest at Hotel Asch, a beach resort maintained by the grace of the City and County.

Sake, a Japanese man, entered complaint against the woman alleging that he had been robbed of a sum bordering upon fifty dollars. This money had been deposited with "Sake Home Savings Society" or better known as the family trunk.

That treasures on earth are transitory was brought out in the testimony before Judge Lymer this morning when it developed that the woman had called at the apartment occupied by Sake and while that gentleman was absent, by force of arms she ripped open the trunk and extracted the money.

The Japanese evidently had nothing to conceal in her participation in the lifting of the Sake cash. She claimed while on the stand that a portion of the hoarded wealth belonged to her and that it had only been entrusted to the man during her late illness. She admitted calling at the room and finding no one there, the cash box under lock, and then proceeded to break it open, believing that she had a right to do as she pleased with her share of the property.

The method pursued by the confiding Takina was what caused her undoing and she was given a sentence at the County house which for the next seven months will keep her pretty well occupied with such onerous duties as making prison clothes and assisting in the laundry department of that institution.

The girl who says she wouldn't marry the best man living is lucky if she doesn't eventually capture one of the worst.

If you could see yourself as others see you the chances are you wouldn't believe what you see.

RAINS DELAY SUGAR CARGO

Downfall On Hawaii and Maui
Stops Harvesting for Nearly a Week.

Rains on the islands of Hawaii and Maui have held back the 1911 sugar shipments perceptibly, according to A. M. Nowell, manager of the Sugar Factors Company. The recent downfall on the islands has interfered with harvesting, not seriously, but enough to delay the shipment of the Hawaiian staple.

The American-Hawaiian steamship Alaskan, which left Kahului last evening for Salina Cruz, is carrying the first shipment of 1911 sugar. This vessel was originally billed to take 12,000 tons, but could not assemble that much and left with about two thousand less than was scheduled.

The American ship Brakine M. Phelps is now in port, the first of the sugar fleet that will carry its part of the 1911 crop around the Horn. However, Manager Nowell stated this morning that the Phelps will not be able to get a cargo until the latter part of January. Loading will not begin until January 15, and it will take the big windjammer two weeks to fill her great hold.

Grinding on the island of Oahu is somewhat slow this year. Waialua started last Monday, and Ewa is due to begin grinding today. Once the season is started, the sugar will pour in faster than it can be taken away and the local warehouses will get the overflow for temporary storage.

The delay in grinding caused by the rain is evened up by its beneficial effects on the growing crops. The crop of 1912 will benefit hugely by the heavy downpours.

AUTOISTS DREW SMALL FINES

A half dozen autoists were up before Police Judge Lymer this morning as a result of a campaign now being made by Motorcycle Officer Chilton, charged with exceeding the fifteen-mile speed limit. Each acknowledged the record as kept by Chilton as correct and pleading guilty, were assessed five dollars in each case.
